Collect

God, our refuge and strength, bring near the day when wars shall cease and poverty and pain shall end, that earth may know the peace of heaven through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Rector's Reflection

This time last year I completed my reflection on Remembrance by saying:

"We could simply turn out once a year with our poppy on, or we could fight for a world that those who have died in service paid the ultimate sacrifice for. The same world Jesus died for upon the cross for. A world where we see God's kingdom come when we serve one another. So my question to us is how will we serve others as a response to the sacrifice that Jesus made; and as a response to the sacrifice that so many men and women made?"

I have seen much of that type of service over the last year, but of course there is so much more needed. My friends, let me renew to you and myself the call of sacrificial service to others.
